MEDIA PACK 2025

We set the table and you set the agenda for a meeting with some of the top minds in your industry.

If you're looking for access and influence, you're in the right place.

BUILDING TRUST THROUGH INTIMATE DINING EVENTS

Managed by your dedicated production and event manager, the briefings are hosted by leading journalists and industry experts. These might include Chief Data Officer, HSBC and the Head of Risk & Compliance, Citibank. They are hosted at exclusive London venues, such as The Savoy, The Ritz, House of Lords, and The Goring. They each last 2–3 hours; the presence of 10 senior decision makers is guaranteed. Should you wish, the meeting can be covered by Chatham House rules.

Before the briefing, an agenda is drafted, agreed and circulated among all the participants. After the event has taken place, a write-up of the insights shared is published on business-reporter.com

“It was very beneficial – it is so useful to hear what other retailers are doing to walk away with new ideas.

The size of the group was great, as was the variety of roles & companies within it. I’ve got some ideas that I will take away with me.”

Head of Internal Communication and Customer Service, Waterstones

‘Very good, honest discussion and points discussed and raised on different sectors, challenges and processes’

Head of programme, IDEA/Dep of architecture, Ravensbourne

‘Business Reporter have successfully run our series of high end c-level executive roundtables.

Hosted at the Goring Hotel, we have seen a genuinely impressive calibre of attendees that we worked with BR to have attended.

We provided a range of target accounts and trusted BR to generate attendees in and around those targets. Our engagement has been really well received by delegates and my sales teams alike – we will definitely be looking to repeat something similar’
